

Above: Central Park. Bike rack placement should be highly visible and unique to its context.

Right: Staten Island, with orange racks to match the iconic Staten Island Ferry beyond.

Opposite: Midtown Manhattan. A slim profile and durable aluminum frame allow the rack to fit in on a New York City sidewalk while keeping bikes secure and out of the way.

This Page: Morningside Park. Varied mounting options can accommodate smaller bikes or other devices. The natural aluminum color helps the rack fit in with its surroundings.
